ABORNS FOR THE CENTURY?

Report Heard That They Will Direct English Opera Season Next Fall.

A report was abroad yesterday that Milton and Sargent Aborn had been offered the directorship of the Century Theatre for the opera season at popular prices which the City Club is to give next autumn in connection with the Metropolitan Opera company.

Otto H. Kahn "could not say anything at all" in regard to the directorship, but he admitted that those interested had a man in mind, Edward Kellogg Baird, chairman of the City Club's opera committee, was equally reticent and the Aborns yesterday were out of town.

The Aborns for the last few years have been giving opera in English throughout the country with considerable success, at times with as many as eight companies playing simultaneously. They had announced that they intended to give a New York season in the autumn in a theatre that is being built for them at Broadway and 6th street.

CHEERS GREET WHITMAN

District Attorney Hears His Praises Sung by Brooklynites.

SOUNDS BATTLE KEYNOTE

Prosecutor Says Aim Is to "Make New York Best City Under God."

Five hundred Brooklynites, representing every shade of political faith, honored District Attorney Whitman for the work he has done with what the men described as an "efficiency dinner" at the Imperial, in Brooklyn, last night. The affair was under the auspices of the Brooklyn Young Republican Club.

There were four speakers. The first three were Congress William M. Calder, Controller William A. Prendergast and the Rev. Nehemiah Boynton. Each paid tribute to the guest of the evening, and every high-sounding phrase of praise that they showered upon the District Attorney was received with cheers by the diners.

The fourth speaker was the District Attorney. When he rose to speak every man rose with him, and cheered him for nearly two minutes. And then, as he did once before, in a public speech, when the citizens of Manhattan gathered in Carnegie Hall to do him honor, he accepted the praise tendered him on behalf of his entire staff of fifty assistants.

Mr. Whitman's speech was somewhat reminiscent, for he came to Brooklyn, before he attained his majority. He told of casting his first vote in Congressman Calder's district, or rather corroborated the Congressman's statement in this regard, and he told of how his first political speech was made on behalf of Mayor Gaynor when he was running for Justice of the Supreme Court. And he made it plain that he had no regrets for supporting the Mayor for the Supreme Court, and he put such emphasis on the office, that the crowd laughed.

Some who heard the District Attorney speak thought he sounded a keynote for the coming Majority campaign in his closing paragraph when he said: "We are not going to be satisfied with the statement that New York City is as good as any other city, perhaps as some city of the Old World, but we are going to unite, without regard to party or with regard to the future factions in any party, to make it the best city under God that we can make it."

And many saw in it a prophecy of a fusion movement, almost as direct as Controller Prendergast's, who during his speech declared that it was the belief of all Progressives, who were progressive not only in name but in mind and heart, "to unite against the party now in power."

Congressman Calder, the first speaker introduced by Darwin R. James, Jr., the president of the club, began by saying that it was only proper that Brooklyn should pay tribute to District Attorney Whitman. He then reviewed his big task of bringing Lieutenant Charles Becker and the four gunmen to justice for the murder of Herman Rosenthal and "for exposing the secret complicity between the hired gunmen and the sworn guardians of the peace and the enforcers of the law, the police."

Controller Prendergast spoke of Mr. Whitman's work in putting the bank wrecker behind the bars, despite "charges as insidious as any the District Attorney has received in the last few months."

Some of those present at the speakers' table were County Judge L. L. Fawcett, District Attorney James C. Crosey of Kings F. R. Cottrell, S. M. Griswold, C. H. Kelly, J. C. Kilgus, J. Livingston, E. G. Sammis and Alfred E. Vass.

IRVING PLACE THEATRE

Three One-Act Plays—Miss Grete Meyer in Two of Them.

Miss Grete Meyer appeared last night at the Irving Place Theatre in two of three one-act plays by Erich Hartleben. Both are a light opera singer and as an actress Miss Meyer has made a highly favorable impression in her two-year stay in this city, and her return to the Irving Place stage was an agreeable event. She has great vivacity and vigor, and her clear enunciation is a treat in these days, when so many players slur and mangle their words.

The first piece, "Abschied vom Regiment," was a condensed tragedy vividly acted. The last, "Die Stille Forderung," was a satirical light comedy in the cynically clever modern method. In both Miss Meyer was thoroughly competent and interesting. The intermediate piece, "Die Lore," was a little character sketch well known on the German stage. Otto Stockel had the leading part in it.

FILIPINO NATION "MYTH"

Independence Would Mean Anarchy, Says A. S. Riggs.

TRIBES ARE DISCORDANT

Education by This Government Must Go On, American Geographical Society Is Told.

"Anarchy and disaster would follow any attempt to establish an independent government in the Philippines at the present time. The Philippine nation of which we hear exists only in the minds of those who are working to form a republic there."

This was the declaration of Arthur Stanley Riggs, F. R. G. S., in a talk on "The Philippines and Filipinos" before the American Geographical Society last night. Mr. Riggs spent two years in active work in the islands and made a thorough investigation of political and social conditions.

"There are some 8,000,000 inhabitants of the islands," Mr. Riggs explained. "The general impression is that there is a 'race' of Filipinos. Instead, those 8,000,000 people are made up of tribes antagonistic to one another. Until solidarity is developed among them any attempt at self-government would be as fatal as to put all the warring tribes of our American Indians on one reserve and expect them to live in harmony."

"In this country we know what would be the result of such a step with the Indians. The Sioux, the Shawnee, the Iroquois and the other tribes are distinct. So are the several tribes of the Philippine Islands. The Igorrotes are distinct from the Moros; in fact, they will not allow members of another tribe to cross their borders as guides to travellers. What is true of these two tribes is true of the Negritos and others."

"I believe firmly that there is a future for the islands, but the continued turmoil on the part of some of our legislative wisacres to set up an independent government there at the present time would result in nothing but disaster and the worst form of anarchy."

"What we of the United States have done in the Philippines has been greater in the twelve years that we have had control there than in all the centuries of Spanish dominion. We first captured the islands; then we fought them. Now we are educating the people. We have not recognized our own limitations, so far as the work is concerned, and the result is that we have been succeeding wonderfully."

"The reasons why it is unsound for us to discontinue this work of education are self-evident. They lie in the widely acknowledged character of the population, the lack of education for self-government, and the necessity of the development of race solidarity."

LAUDER GIVES CUP TO MORRIS.

Harry Lauder presented to William Morris, manager of the New York Theatre, a silver loving cup at a farewell gathering on the stage of the theatre last night.
